

Lee SCHOEFFLER

Class of 1962

Lee Earl Schoeffler, M.D. began his professional career as a chemist in Sunray DX Oil Co.'s Research and Development lab. It was an important job and one he was good at, but the call of the medical profession was too strong to be ignored. Leaving the corporate world behind, Schoeffler graduated from the University of Oklahoma (OU) School of Medicine and completed post-graduate training at St. Anthony's Hospital in Oklahoma City. He completed his residency in Neurology and then Ophthalmology at OU. In 1975, he opened Tulsa Eye Clinic. His commitment to the medical profession includes service as Clinical Professor of Ophthalmology at the OU School of Medicine as well as holding down responsibilities as Vice Chair of Education for the school. His many contributions to the state medical association and Oklahoma Academy of Ophthalmology are considered legendary by his colleagues.
